

Group 3

NEW OPENING!!

Try our 3-course meal of a variation of factory-farmed meat, non-factory-farmed meat AND OUR SECRET RECIPE DESSERT

CREAMY CHICKEN

Arguably the best part of the chicken, we season our chicken thighs with the finest herbs before dousing them in a generous amount of our special cream sauce, before topping that off with tons of mozzarella and cheddar cheese.

Reviews

by Ben ★★★★★
It's awesome! Good taste as usual but just cheaper! It brings me so much pleasure. Wish this factory farmed meat gets more popular!

Comments:

by Norcross
You are indeed pleased by having such a sinful meal, because you did not see how factory-farmed animals live in pain. If you have considered that, you should find that factory farming creates far more misery than happiness. That is why you should stop consuming factory farmed meat, as you will support the factory farming industry by doing so!

by Ben
Alright, maybe factory farming indeed brings more misery than happiness as you said, but even if I don't eat that meat, the factory farming industry will not shut down! So since I can't stop those animals from suffering, why am I torturing myself as well by not eating their meat?

by Norcross
That's a simple question. Look, suppose there is a man who tortures puppies for material to make good chocolate. He invites you to his house someday and offers you dessert. Will you accept it? You won't! Even if you know it won't discourage him from torturing puppies. And so you should not eat factory-farmed meat even though it makes no difference to the factory farming industry!

HONEY GLAZED PORK BELLY

Our Aburi pork belly is glazed with honey and torched to perfection. Served with a side of mashed potato and Portobello mushrooms, this dish is the best fusion between East and West.

Reviews

by Lomasky ★★★★★
The portion is great and the pork is extremely tender! Will definitely come back for more! The mushroom though, was a bit too salty for my liking.

Comments:

by Lomasky
Pleasure is all that matters. The lives of factory-farmed meat are worth living as long as they experience more pleasure than pain. From the tenderness of their belly, it seems like they experienced more pleasure than pain in their lifetime. Let's assume that factory farmed animals experienced more pleasure than pain in their lifetime. By consuming this pork belly, I am promoting the creation of more pleasure and lives that are worth living. They would not have existed if not for my support of factory farmed meat. I am doing something that is morally right.

by George
How can you say that these animals are experiencing pleasure and leading a good life? Have you seen the conditions of factory farms? The place is congested and the animals have no freedom!

by Lomasky
It would be sad for us if we were to live in the conditions of factory farmed animals. But do we really know how it is like? We are merely imagining the conditions without actually knowing. Wild animals are at risk of overcrowding and competition for resources whereas factory-farmed animals are enjoying their life with ample farm space and readily accessible food.

COCOAMONE MILKSHAKE

This is the best chocolate milkshake on this planet because it is infused with our secret ingredient - cocoamone! We stress and torture puppies in our in-house laboratory to harvest the cocoamone. Such fine delicacy!

Reviews

by Norcross ★
This is repulsive! This is sickening! No decent person should torture puppies to enhance a gustatory experience! Boycott this restaurant!

Comments:

by Fred
Sure, it is indeed horrible to torture puppies, but have you thought about the endless possibilities cocoamone might bring? We would be able to taste the most delicious chocolate desserts in the world! I don't consider myself a sadist, but surely it is okay to sacrifice these animals once in awhile to give our taste buds a treat?

by Norcross
Would you have liked it if I torture human beings just to give your taste buds a treat? By saying this, you are essentially claiming that human beings have a higher moral status than animals. Even so, this still does not change the fact that it is morally impermissible to consume these food!

by Fred
If a being is incapable of moral reasoning, at even the most basic level, if it is incapable of being moved by moral reasons, claims, or arguments, then it cannot be a moral agent. If animals, unlike human beings, are not moral agents who are capable of moral reasoning, then they should not be moral patients who are subjected to moral obligations, praise or blame as well. There is no point giving consideration to the interests of animals because they are incapable of giving likewise consideration to our interests.