

Journal of Beat Studies

Volume 9, 2021

	1	Letter from the Editors
Deborah Geis	5	Angelheaded (Neo-)Hipsters: Two Cultural Re-productions Of Ginsberg’s “Howl”
		THE BEAT INTERVIEW
A. Robert Lee	21	Life Within Life: Clive Matson Interview with A. Robert Lee
		COMMEMORATIONS
Mary Paniccia Carden	45	Revolutionary Poet: Diane di Prima, 1934-2020
Jane Falk	53	Michael McClure: “ALCHEMIST OF FLESH,” 1932-2020
Estíbaliz Encarción-Pinedo	59	I see you dancing: ruth weiss, Word and Legacy (1928-2020)
		REVIEWS
Nathaniel Cadle	69	Understanding William S. Burroughs By Gerald Alva Miller, Jr.
Daniel Kane	73	In the Rebel Café: Interviews with Ed Sanders Edited by Jennie Skerl
Eric Keenaghan	76	The Householders: Robert Duncan and Jess By Tara McDowell
Amor Kohli	81	A Black Arts Poetry Machine: Amiri Baraka and the Umbra Poets By David Grundy

Fiona Paton

86 The Beats: Authorships, Legacies
By A. Robert Lee

The Beats: A Literary History
By Steven Belletto

Rebecca L. Aberle

93 The Beat Index

115 Essay Abstracts

116 Notes on Contributors

119 Editorial Policy