

Table of Contents

Contributors	viii
Preface	xi

PART I THEORY

1. A Radical Constructivist View of Meaning and the Problem of Communication Ernst von Glasersfeld	3
2. Meaning in Relationship Kenneth J. Gergen	9

PART II PRACTICE

3. Innovations in Psychotherapy: Tracking the Narrative Construction of Change Miguel M. Gonçalves, Anita Santos, Marlene Matos, João Salgado, Inês Mendes, António Ribeiro, Carla Cunha, and Juliana Gonçalves	29
4. Reconstructing the Continuing Bond: A Constructivist Approach to Grief Therapy Robert A. Neimeyer	65
5. The Dynamic Features of Love: Changes in Self and Motivation Agnieszka Hermans-Konopka and Hubert J. M. Hermans	93
6. Asking and Answering Deconstruction Questions from within Counseling Dialogues Tom Strong and Lara Schultz	125

PART III
SOCIAL JUSTICE

7. Doing Justice: A Witnessing Stance in Therapeutic Work alongside Survivors of Torture and Political Violence 157
Vikki Reynolds
8. Constructivist Mentoring as Social Justice 185
Sara K. Bridges
9. Gazing at Objectification Theory through a Social Constructionist Lens 205
Melanie S. Hill
10. The Integral Universe, Experiential Personal Construct Psychology, Transpersonal Reverence, and Transpersonal Responsibility 227
Larry M. Leitner
11. Constructing and Deconstructing Social Justice Counseling 247
Jonathan D. Raskin

PART IV
THEORY REVISITED

12. The Hierarchy of Epistemological Beliefs: All Ways of Knowing Are Not Created Equal 281
Tabitha R. Holmes
13. Psychotherapist-as-Philosopher-of-Science 317
Dušan Stojnov
14. The Status of the Individual in Pragmatism and Constructivism 361
Trevor Butt

About the Editors	381
Appendix: About the Constructivist Psychology Network	383
Index of Proper Names	385
Subject Index	395