

Table of Contents

Contributors	vii
Preface: Is Constructivist Psychology Still Relevant?	xi

PART I CONSTRUCTIVISM

1. An Introductory Perturbation: What Is Constructivism and Is There a Future in It? Jonathan D. Raskin	3
2. What Does the Future Hold for Personal Construct Psychology? David A. Winter	28
3. What Does the Future Hold for Radical Constructivism? Alexander Riegler	64

PART II SOCIAL CONSTRUCTIONISM AND NARRATIVE PSYCHOLOGY

4. On Being a Social Constructionist in a More Than Human World Tom Strong	91
5. Paradoxes of the Constructed: Narrative Psychology and Beyond Mark Freeman	119

PART III
CONSTRUCTIVIST PSYCHOTHERAPY

6. Where's the Gimmick? Future Prospects for Constructivist Psychotherapy 155
Jay S. Efran and Jonah N. Cohen
7. Developing a Dialogue: Constructivist Convergence in Psychotherapy and Beyond 182
Robert A. Neimeyer, Donald Meichenbaum, and Caroline M. Stanley

PART IV
LOOKING FORWARD

8. Imagining Possible Futures: Scenarios for Constructivist Psychology 221
Jelena Pavlović
9. What Would an Integrative Constructivism Look Like? 246
Michael F. Mascolo, Michael Basseches, and Amanda El-Hashem
10. Constructivism: Where Do We Go from Here? 300
Jonathan D. Raskin, Sara K. Bridges, and Jack S. Kahn
- About the Editors 328
- Appendix: About the Constructivist Psychology Network 330
- Index of Proper Names 332
- Subject Index 340