

MANAGEMENT OF AGING SERVICES

MS and Graduate Certificate

This program is a uniquely user-friendly, intimate, interactive learning experience that can help you achieve your academic and career goals on your own terms. Study part- or full-time to earn your degree without upending your life. While students work individually, you have ample opportunity to interact with professors and classmates on a weekly basis. The lifelong connections you form through this program will help prepare you for success in this dynamic, growing field.

The Department of Gerontology at the University of Massachusetts Boston is one of the oldest and largest aging studies institutions in the world. Since 2003, the Management of Aging Services Program has provided online opportunities for established professionals and career changers to learn about population aging, service delivery, and program administration with experienced faculty.

Management of Aging Services

Online graduate study for passionate professionals

Emily Williams, MS, is a Management of Aging Services (MAS) Program graduate. She has always had a passion for connecting older adults and their families to resources that help them age in their community. As director of the Department of Elder Affairs for Bridgewater, Massachusetts, and board member of the Massachusetts Gerontology Association, she pursues that passion every day, thanks to the MAS Program. “The gerontology faculty want you to succeed. The program opened many doors for me, through the relationships and networking opportunities. It’s one of a kind.”

UMass Boston’s Department of Gerontology can help you move up in your organization or launch a new career.
