

PERMISSION TO PUBLISH

University Archives & Special Collections Joseph P. Healey Library University of Massachusetts Boston

With some internal University of Massachusetts Boston exceptions, permission to publish, exhibit, broadcast, or quote from materials in the University Archives & Special Collections Department of the Healey Library requires written permission of the University Archivist or designee. Authors are reminded that except in the cases of collections for which the University holds copyright, permission may also need to be obtained from the holder(s) of that right.

The department requests a copy of the printed publication (or pages), or the film, video, including any “non-print” publication in which UMass Boston material appears.

When referencing, proper credit must be given to the University Archives & Special Collections and read as follows:

*Please list on separate sheet of paper requested item(s) for publication.

AGREEMENT

1. Permission is granted for one-time use only. Materials may not be reused without the written permission of University Archives & Special Collections.
2. No charge is made for non-commercial publication of material, though scanning/digitization charges may apply. The University reserves the right to make charges as it deems appropriate in any individual case.
3. The University does not claim to control the rights to all the materials in its collections. The publishing party assumes all responsibility for clearing reproduction rights and for any infringement of the U.S. Copyright Code.
