About New York Conference on Asian Studies
The New York Conference on Asian Studies is the oldest of the eight regional conferences of the Association for Asian Studies (AAS), the largest society of its kind in the world. NYCAS is represented on the Council of Conferences, one of the subdivisions of the governing body of the AAS, and speaks for all persons interested in any branch of Asian Studies in the State of New York.

Membership in NYCAS is open to all persons interested in Asian Studies. It draws its membership primarily from New York State and welcomes participants from any region interested in its activities. All persons registering for the annual meeting pay a membership fee to NYCAS, and are considered members eligible to participate in the annual business meeting and to vote in all NYCAS elections for that year. The membership will be asked to elect members to fill vacancies on the Executive Board, and to decide the location of future Conferences. The membership is invited to submit nominations for vacancies on the Executive Board. Please address correspondence to Ronald G. Knapp Executive Secretary at the address below:

NYCAS publishes its Newsletter on the NYCAS website and updates it regularly. The goal of the NYCAS Newsletter is to inform readers of activities on campuses throughout the region and of events of interest to the membership. It seeks to enrich the teaching and research activities of NYCAS members through knowledge of innovative developments. News commentaries and any items of interest should be sent to the editor: Ronald G. Knapp, Department of Geography, SUNY New Paltz, South Manheim Boulevard, New Paltz, NY; FAX: 845-257-2992; E-MAIL: knappr@newpaltz.edu.

Cornell University’s South Asia Program, Southeast Asia Program, East Asia Program and the Einaudi Center for International Studies
Cornell combines Ivy League excellence in the liberal arts with the kind of practical instruction in agriculture, economic development, planning, and human services that is typical of a major landgrant university. This unique combination creates extraordinary opportunities for research, scholarship and interdisciplinary education. Under the umbrella of The Mario Einaudi Center for International Studies, the East Asia Program, South Asia Program, and Southeast Asia Program, stand at the hub of their respective campus-wide networks that encompass virtually all of Cornell’s schools and colleges.

Attention to Asia in the form of courses, faculty, research, libraries, art exhibitions, language learning, resources, student organizations, and exchange programs extends throughout this pluralistic structure, but is coordinated and supported by these centers of excellence. The Asia Programs are recipients of U.S. Department of Education Title VI funding and are thus recognized as National Resource Centers. Each sponsor numerous lectures and events on Asia, administer outreach programs, and contribute widely to academic work through their own publication series.

You are invited to learn more about their resources and the wide array of scholarly and cultural events that are offered to Cornellians as well as to regional and national constituents.

“ASIA HERE, ASIA THERE: WHOSE TRADITIONS DO WE STUDY?”
Keynote address presented by Charles Keyes, President, Association for Asian Studies, Henry M. Jackson Professor of International Studies, and Professor of Anthropology, University of Washington.

When the Far Eastern Association (the predecessor of the Association for Asian Studies) was first created, it was predicated on the premise that the subjects of the field were the histories, societies, and cultures located in Asia. The scholars who belonged to the Association, however, were located in North America. This old ‘we/they’ dichotomy has been markedly undermined by (a) migration and creation of diasporic communities, (b) ease of travel and communication, and (c) development of strong scholarly communities in most Asian countries. This talk will explore how questions of what is ‘Vietnameseness’, ‘Chineseness’, and so on, have been rendered deeply problematic by the emergence of communities for which such terms label ‘ethnic’ rather than ‘national’ identities.
FILM SCREENING-8:45 pm
Uris G-1 Auditorium
“PLATFORM” (Zhantai) Written and directed by Zhang Ke Jia and introduced by critic/director Evans Chan.
Set in Fenyang Shanxi Province, the film focuses on a group of amateur theatre troupe performers whose fate mirrors that of the general population in China, as massive socioeconomic changes sweep across the mainland. The film commences in 1979, with the troupe performing by-the-book numbers idolizing Mao Zedong and ends in the 80’s when their show has become a glitzy Vegas-style salute to Hong Kong “Cantopop.” “Platform” reflects the strong Western influences pervading China, covering a decade in which China saw tremendous changes. A highlight of last year’s New York and Toronto Film Festivals and winner of multiple festival awards, ” Platform” puts [director] Jia at the forefront of current Chinese cinema” (J Hoberman Village Voice) 2000, 2 hrs. 35 mins. China.

CONCURRENT PROGRAM – SATURDAY 2:30–6:00 pm:
“ASIA IN BITS AND BYTES”
Kroch Library

A workshop to familiarize participants with concepts of electronic publishing, online instruction, specific encoding schemes, various online resources and operational strategies to incorporate e-resources into one’s own work environment. Topics to be covered: full-text databases; bibliographic databases; e-text centers and “paysites”; raw data repositories; directory type resources; e-dictionary concepts; existing primary image archives; interface issues (human-machine interaction); models of teacher-student interaction; specific software platforms; specific applications we found useful to achieve a certain end; new strategies by publishers, universities and libraries to harmonize their respective interests; existing e-courseware packages relevant to the field of Asian Studies.
Thomas H. Hahn, Curator, Wason Collection, Kroch Library
(Enrollment is limited. Participants must sign up at the time of registration.)

FAREWELL RECEPTION—ASIA EXHIBITION—OLIN/KROCH LIBRARY—6:00 pm

The treasures of Cornell’s Echols Collection on SE Asia, the South Asia Collection, and the Charles W. Wason Collection on East Asia will be on display in a special exhibition of both textual and illustrated Western and original script materials. The works represent each of the Asian regions, its respective cultures, and perceptions of its peoples.
FILM SCREENING — 7:30 pm
Willard Straight Hall Theatre

“HIMALAYA” — Directed by Eric Valli and introduced by Kathryn March, Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology and Women’s Studies Program, Cornell University.

“Himalaya” is a visually striking and spiritually captivating portrait of life in one of the world’s most extraordinary places. Filmed in the forbidding Dolpo region of Nepal under the most challenging conditions, “Himalaya” captures the fast-disappearing traditions of Tibetan life. The film is the remarkable directorial debut of author, documentarian and National Geographic photographer Eric Valli, who has lived in Nepal for nearly two decades. Academy Award nominee for Best Foreign Film. In Tibetan with English subtitles.

1999, color, 1 hr. 14 mins. Nepal/France

Abstracts will be available for viewing at the Book Exhibit located in the Multi-Purpose Room of Robert Purcell Conference Center

Please bring this conference booklet with you to the annual meeting. There is a $5.00 charge for replacement or additional copies.
