Welcome to the nation’s capital just as we absorb the news of the newly elected leaders of the USA as President and Congress! The timing is extraordinary. We are celebrating an auspicious anniversary: the 70th of the Fulbright Program which began in the ashes of World War II with exchanges to former combatant nations to rebuild the world on the basis of education for peace and understanding. During the conference, we have the chance to learn from our colleagues in the Fulbright Program how we can continue to engage in a world filled with unrelenting crises all these years later—and how to share the story.

Senator Fulbright’s words are as relevant today as when he wrote them in 1987:

“We may be mature, but we are newly young and open to the challenges ahead. Based on the bilateral agreements of our government with over 70 nations and Public Affairs offices in another 70 undergirding the many layers of the Fulbright Program, we come from deep and solid support for engaging with the peoples of the globe made smaller by technology but facing similar needs for understanding beyond ideology and for shared research and teaching to solve deep human problems.”

Attendees at our conference this year include scholars and researchers presenting current work, recently returned young alumni, lifetime members who have returned every year since the founding of the alumni association, international Commission Heads, Chapter leaders from across the country, planners of new initiatives for international understanding, and officials whose work in public office exemplifies the Fulbright ideal. Members who are creating new pathways for peace, filmmakers, entrepreneurs, artists, and more will fill our days and our minds with ideas, energy and ways we can continue to be responsible internationalists.

We look forward to you joining the discussion, sharing your narrative, and networking with colleagues and friends from around the globe.

Welcome!

Mary Ellen Heian Schmider
