

List of External Grants and Scholarships for Geosciences Graduate Students

*The UWM Department of Geosciences has many opportunities for graduate students to apply for monetary assistance including awards for expenses related to 1) research and 2) presenting research at professional conferences. Please watch for emails from the Geosciences department for these opportunities. In addition, we have compiled a list of grant opportunities available for graduate students from external agencies. Please note that the descriptions of grants listed here are severely abbreviated and the due dates are approximate. Please refer to the granting agency's website for more information. In the past, many of our graduate students have been successful in their applications for these grants (grants that recent UWM graduate students have been awarded), and we want you to continue that tradition. Your advisor will be able to help you review your application (if you give her or him enough time!). Good luck!*
