Food Security Fund

What is the Food Security Fund?

The Food Security Fund was established by Washington University's Dining Services in partnership with Student Financial Services to ensure all students have access to adequate, quality, nutritious foods on campus.

The Food Security Fund was created to address potential food insecurity on campus and provide to those seeking financial assistance for food.

Requesting Assistance

Undergraduate students that run out of meal points and are in need of financial assistance for food are encouraged to complete a brief questionnaire by scanning this QR code:

To speak to a Student Accounting Representative:

- Call (314) 935-5274 or
- Toll free at (800) 758-0050
- Email: Student.Billing@wustl.edu

Distributing The Food Security Fund

Meal points are awarded to students based on financial need as determined by Financial Services.

Meal points are discretely loaded to the student's meal point account and can be used at all dining locations immediately.

How to Give Back

At the end of each semester, students can give back in two ways:

- 01. Transfer meal points directly to the Food Security Fund. Students have the opportunity to transfer up to 50 meal points to the fund at the end of each semester.
- 02. Use meal points to purchase non-perishable foods for donation to a local food bank.
