

Take an exciting adventure this summer through the world of evolution!

John Hawks,
associate professor of anthropology,
University of Wisconsin-Madison
• Institute for School
Partnership Darwin
Day 2019 keynote speaker

- Internationally recognized expert on human evolution and genetics
- Creator of widely read and referenced science blog, "John Hawks Weblog"

Join the evolution education book club!

Looking for good conversation? Love science and books? Our evolution education book club is just the thing for you. Open to St. Louis area K-12 educators. You'll share strategies for teaching evolution in the classroom, recent discoveries, current research and information on local events.

We're reading Lee Berger and John Hawks' "Almost Human: The Astonishing Tale of Homo naledi and the Discovery That Changed Our Human Story."

THREE WEDNESDAYS THIS SUMMER:

(you do not need to attend all three meetings)

June 12 - Prologue – Part 1 (pages 11-66)

July 10 – Chapters 9-21 (pages 67-148)

August 14 – Chapters 10-end (pages 149-226)

Free parking
Wine and cheese provided

Your book is FREE

and you can pick it up
at the mySci Resource Center
Monday - Friday, 8:30-4:00

RSVP to Paula Smith

psmith26@wustl.edu
314-935-6846

4:00-5:30 at the mySci Resource Center
6601 Vernon Ave
UCity 63130

ISP INSTITUTE FOR SCHOOL PARTNERSHIP
Washington University in St. Louis