

2022 Ohio Mass Spectrometry and Metabolomics Symposium

October 12 & 13, 2022 | Ohio Union

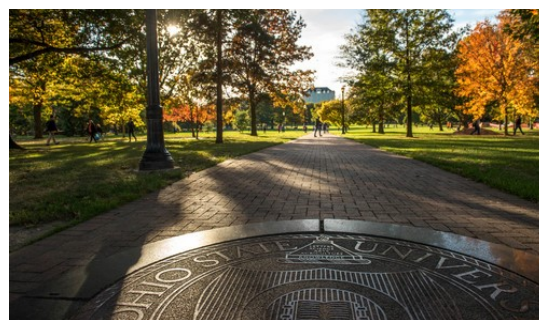

The 5th Annual Ohio Mass Spectrometry and Metabolomics Symposium will be held at the Ohio Union in Columbus, Ohio, on October 12-13, 2022. This joint meeting of the 19th Annual Ohio Mass Spectrometry Symposium and 5th Annual Conference on Food and Nutritional Metabolomics will be co-hosted by the OSU Campus Chemical Instrument Center and OSU Foods for Health Initiative.

The purpose of the two-day event is to provide an opportunity for academic and industrial researchers in the region to present their findings, share information, discuss research challenges with colleagues, and spark new collaborations in the rapidly advancing fields of mass spectrometry and metabolomics. The planned agenda includes: workshops; invited keynote and plenary speakers; oral, poster and flash talk presentations (submitted abstracts); Lunch and Learn sessions; and networking sessions. We anticipate 200 participants.

Benefits of sponsorship

As a sponsor, your brand will be presented to researchers and students with interests in mass spectrometry, metabolomics, and Foods for Health research. Opportunities for networking, sharing of information, and student career and intern recruitment will benefit all involved.
