Opening/ Hook: Students will be greeted and told that they are a part of the situation room at the White House and then asked if they have heard about the issues that are occurring in North Korea.

Students will be then be told that they will be participating in an activity that will allow them to be in a role of a White house advisor and they will be researching and providing information to the president on how to handle the issues that are occurring.

Before we begin with our assignments I would ask the class do they know what the crisis is about? Students will also be asked what is going on in North Korea and East Asia that could cause for the United States to be concerned?

Lesson: Introduction (I DO)

I will begin to have student brainstorm under the topic situations in North Korea.

Lesson: Guided Practice (WE DO)

As a class students will be given a handout that specifies for them to create a timeline to choose ten dates that are most important to tell the story of the North Korean Nuclear Weapons Program. Students will share their events with the class.

Lesson: Independent Practice (YOU DO)

With those dates that they have gathered, the students will be asked to discuss these questions:

What would you say is the nature of the problem facing the United States?

Why do you think North Korea is behaving this way?

Formative Assessments:

Informal: Students will be asked to present their findings to the (teacher/president) on what we should to figure out how to handle the Korean problems.
