

Narrating Monte Albán:
Seven True Stories of the Great Zapotec
Capital of Southern Mexico

The first of three books on Monte Albán, Oaxaca, Mexico.

Lindsay Jones

Copyright © 2015 by Lindsay Jones
All rights reserved.

ABBREVIATED TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE

The Special Interests of an Outsider to Oaxacan Studies.....xvii

INTRODUCTION

The Absence of a Master Narrative:
100 Years of Storytelling at the “Ruins” of Monte Albán.....1

CHAPTER ONE

The Unfolding of Alfonso Caso’s Story of Monte Albán:
From Tales of Discovery to a Five-Stage History of the Zapotec Capital.....37

CHAPTER TWO

Ignacio Bernal’s Affirmation of Intercultural Admixing: Monte Albán
as a Microcosm of Mesoamerica and Model for Modern Mexico.....140

CHAPTER THREE

John Paddock on Monte Albán as an Urban Work of Art: A Story of the Emergence and Perseverance of Zapotec Cultural-Ethnic Identity.....208

CHAPTER FOUR

Richard Blanton on Monte Albán as a “Disembedded Capital”:
A Story of Militarism, Regional Cooperation and Religious Neutrality.....282

CHAPTER FIVE

Marcus Winter’s Story of Strategic Resource Management:
Monte Albán as Part and Parcel of a pan-Oaxacan Social Evolution.....364

CHAPTER SIX

Kent Flannery and Joyce Marcus’s “Actor-Centered” Story of Oaxacan
Social Evolution: Charismatic Leadership and an Illusion of Control.....436

CHAPTER SEVEN

Arthur Joyce’s Poststructural Rereading of Oaxacan Social History:
A Story of Sacred Spaces, Rituals and the Agency of Commoners.....548

FULL TABLE OF CONTENTS

Abbreviated Table of Contents.....	iii
Full Table of Contents.....	iv

PREFACE

The Special Interests of an Outsider to Oaxacan Studies.....	xvii
I. The Preoccupations of a Historian of Religions: Scrutinizing “Religion,” Architectural Meaning and Archaeological Storytelling.....	xix
A. Concerns about the Conceptualization of “Religion”: Aspirations to Methodological Clarity and Self-Consciousness.....	xix
B. Concerns about Meanings of Monumental Architecture: The Superabundance and Autonomy of Enduring Built Forms.....	xxi
C. Concerns about the Writing of Ancient History: Archaeological (Re)construction and “the Poetic Act of Emplotment”.....	xxiii
II. Essential Preparation for More Venturous Interpretations of Monte Albán: Self-Critical Reading and the History of Ideas	xxvi

INTRODUCTION

The Absence of a Master Narrative: 100 Years of Storytelling at the “Ruins” of Monte Albán.....	1
I. Six Working Propositions: The Rewards and Ramifications of Storytelling about Monte Albán.....	5
A. “Emplotment,” “Followability” and Understanding: Invariably Narrative Solutions to the Enigma of Archaeological Ruins.....	6
B. Archaeological Storytelling: The Non-Exemption of Scholarly Accounts of Monte Albán History.....	9
C. Respecting the Historical Record: Empirical Accuracy as One among Many Measures of Storiological Success.....	14
D. Accentuating the Differences: Seven Unique and Viable (Re)constructions of Monte Albán History.....	18
E. The Priority of Presuppositions: The Contingent Quality of Every Monte Albán Narrative (Re)construction.....	19
F. Reception and Indeterminacy: Intended, Unintended and Not-Yet-Realized Utilizations of Monte Albán (Re)constructions.....	23

II. Seven Superabundant Stories: Alternative Versions of “What Really Happened” at Monte Albán.....	28
A. The Unfolding of Alfonso Caso’s Story of Monte Albán: From Tales of Discovery to a Five-Stage History of the Zapotec Capital.....	29
B. Ignacio Bernal’s Affirmation of Intercultural Admixing: Monte Albán as a Microcosm of Mesoamerica and Model for Modern Mexico.....	30
C. John Paddock on Monte Albán as an Urban Work of Art: A Story of the Emergence and Perseverance of Zapotec Cultural-Ethnic Identity.....	31
D. Richard Blanton on Monte Albán as a “Disembedded Capital”: A Story of Militarism, Regional Cooperation and Religious Neutrality.....	32
E. Marcus Winter’s Story of Strategic Resource Management: Monte Albán as Part and Parcel of a pan-Oaxacan Social Evolution.....	33
F. Kent Flannery and Joyce Marcus’s “Actor-Centered” Story of Oaxacan Social Evolution: Charismatic Leadership and an Illusion of Control.....	34
G. Arthur Joyce’s Poststructural Rereading of Oaxacan Social History: A Story of Sacred Spaces, Rituals and the Agency of Commoners.....	35

CHAPTER ONE

The Unfolding of Alfonso Caso’s Story of Monte Albán: From Tales of Discovery to a Five-Stage History of the Zapotec Capital.....

I. The Foundations of a Monte Albán Narrative: Identifying the Protagonists and Formulating the Plotline.....	40
A. Initial Impressions and Forward-Looking Ambitions: Monte Albán Emerging from the Shadow of Mitla.....	43
B. Disentangling the Mixtecs and Zapotecs: Epigraphic Analysis as a Crucial First Step.....	46
1. Zapotec Monuments and Mixtec Codices: Entirely Different and Distinct Cultures.....	47
2. Emerging Narrative Themes: Imagining Monte Albán as a Strictly Zapotec City.....	51
C. Excavation Begins and Tomb 7 Emerges: A Discovery that Changes Everything.....	53
1. The Earliest Narrations: An Interim Tale of Personal Discovery and a Provisional Story of Monte Albán.....	55
2. Scholarship and Publicity: Academic versus Popular Renditions of the Tomb 7 Discovery.....	62
II. The Inception and Revisioning of a Monte Albán Narrative: Reconsidering the Roles of Zapotecs, Mixtecs and Others.....	70
A. A New Problem and an Old Problem: Reconsidering the End and the Beginning of Zapotec Monte Albán.....	69
1. Revising the Story of Late Monte Albán: Finding a Place for Mixtecs in the Zapotec City.....	70

2. Revising the Story of Early Monte Albán: Danzante Anomalies and Intimations of a non-Zapotec, non-Mixtec Third Party.....	72
B. Ascertaining the Mixtec Role in a Zapotec City: Tomb 7 as Instructive but Anomalous.....	78
1. Two Versions of Zapotec-Mixtec Interaction at Monte Albán: Successive and/or Contemporaneous Cultures.....	80
2. Reasserting Zapotec Primacy and Fine-tuning the Mixtec Role: The Prospect of a Mixtec Invasion.....	82
III. The Prototype for All Subsequent Monte Albán (Re)construction Narratives: Settling on a Five-Epoch Saga of the City.....	86
A. Chronology via Ceramic Stratigraphy: From Three-Stage Sketch to Five-Stage Scheme.....	86
B. The Very First Synthesis of Oaxaca Archaeology: Caso's Prototypic Statement of the Five-Epoch History of Monte Albán.....	92
1. A Primer on Stratigraphic Method: The Endurant Ambiguity of Successive Periods versus Overlapping Ceramic Styles.....	95
2. The Five Stages Elaborated: Monte Albán within the Broader Context of Mesoamerica.....	98
a. Epoch I: Prefiguring an Olmec Role in the City's Founding.....	99
b. Epoch II: Mayanoid Stimulus to a Great but Brief Florescence.....	102
c. Epoch III: A Grander Teotihuacan-Stimulated Florescence.....	104
d. Epoch IV: A Gradual Rather than Sudden Decline.....	105
e. Epoch V: A Mixtec Presence of Still-Uncertain Sorts.....	107
C. Technical Adjustments and Popular Enhancements: Answering the Exuberance of Mayanist Aficionados.....	109
1. A Five-Epoch Ode to the Ancient Zapotecs: Pre-Columbian Oaxacans as Even Greater than the Classic Mayas.....	110
a. Epoch I: Fabulously Skilled and Sublime Oaxacan Founders.....	114
b. Epoch II: Well-Balanced Zapotec Artist-Intellectual-Politicians.....	116
c. Epoch III: Oaxacan Excellence Born of Cultural Symbiosis.....	117
d. Epoch IV: Multiple, But Still Uncertain Causes of Collapse.....	118
e. Epoch V: Mixtecs as Also Excellent in their Own Ways.....	119
2. Alternative Routes to Cultural Excellence: Maya Isolationism versus Zapotec Interactivity.....	120
IV. Closing Thoughts: The Content and Context of a Mexican Story of Monte Albán.....	122
A. Ongoing Corrections and Readjustments: The Resilience of an Untidy Five-Stage Scheme.....	123
B. The Content of Caso's Story of Monte Albán: Four Unresolved Issues of Major Import.....	127
C. Contextualizing Caso's Story of Monte Albán: Personal, Professional and Political Incentives.....	130

CHAPTER TWO

Ignacio Bernal's Affirmation of Intercultural Admixing: Monte Albán as a Microcosm of Mesoamerica and Model for Modern Mexico.....140

I. From Alfonso Caso to Ignacio Bernal: Major Similarities and Significant Differences.....	143
II. A Guiding Narrative Theme: Mexican National Identity and the Fortuitous Consequences of Intercultural Admixing.....	146
A. Ancient Peoples as Modern Models: Appealing Pre-Columbians, Ambiguous Religious Piety and Advantageous “Cultural Fusion”.....	147
B. Archaeological Syntheses and/or Museum Displays: Composing and Extracting a Five-Stage, Six-Actor Story of Monte Albán.....	151
III. The Sequence of Events: Ignacio Bernal's Historical (Re)construction.....	157
A. The Valley of Oaxaca in Advance of Monte Albán: A Distinctive, Independent and Sturdy Cultural Presence.....	157
B. Period I: The Early Ascent of Monte Albán: Indigenous Oaxacan Founders and Olmecoid Influences.....	160
1. An Absence of Small Beginnings: The Monte Albán Origins of Writing, Calendrics and Monumental Architecture.....	161
2. Mitigating the Mother Role of Olmecs: Oaxacan Autonomy from and Indebtedness to Gulf Coast Peoples.....	163
C. Period II: The Continuing Ascent of Monte Albán: A Combination of Oaxacan Receptivity and Mayanoid Stimulation.....	168
1. Popular Continuity and Elite Innovation: An Emphasis on Religious, Artistic and Architectural Elaboration, not Military Prowess.....	169
2. Oaxacan Resilience and Receptivity: Cooperative not Coercive Intercultural Exchange.....	171
D. Period IIIA: Early Classic Monte Albán: Teotihuacan Influences and the Origins of Zapotec Culture.....	175
1. “Cultural Fusion” Par Excellence: From Four-Party Conglomerate to the Birth of a Distinctive Zapotec Culture.....	176
2. The Teotihuacan and Monte Albán Relationship: Continuing Oaxaca Autonomy and Receptivity.....	178
E. Period IIIB: Late Classic Monte Albán: Teotihuacan's Demise and the Zapotecs' Theocratic Successes and Excesses.....	181

1. Contrastive Capitals: Militaristic and Expansionist Teotihuacanos versus Theocratic and Stay-at-Home Zapotecs.....	183
2. Ambivalent Assessments of Theocracy: Religio-Artistic Exuberance and Politico-Economic Impassivity.....	185
F. Periods IV & V: Postclassic Collapse: Zapotec Isolationism and Self-Destruction, Mixtec “Secularization” and “New Vigor”.....	188
1. A Familiar Two-Part Theocratic Pattern: Self-Induced Vulnerability and Opportunistic Invaders.....	190
2. Mixtec Opportunism: A Modernizing and Corrective Challenge to Zapotec Theocracy.....	191
3. One Last “Cultural Fusion”: A Fortuitous Encounter between Mixtec “Secularization” and Zapotec Religiosity.....	194
IV. Closing Thoughts: Monte Albán as a Microcosm of Ancient Mesoamerica and a Model for Contemporary Mexico.....	197
A. Affirmations of Pre-Columbian Ancestry: Six Indigenous Groups, Each Excellent in its Own Way.....	198
B. Acute Ambivalence about Religion: The Very Mixed Merits of Piety, Ceremonialism and Devotion.....	200
C. Advocacy for Cultural Cross-Fertilization: Ancient Zapotec Admixing as a Model for Mestizo Mexican Identity.....	202

CHAPTER THREE

John Paddock on Monte Albán as an Urban Work of Art: A Story of the Emergence and Perseverance of Zapotec Cultural-Ethnic Identity.....	208
I. Enthusiasms, Aspirations and Assumptions: A Third and More Widely Accessible Synthesis of Ancient Oaxaca.....	212
A. According Oaxaca its (Over)due: Paired Appreciations of Ancient and Modern Oaxacans.....	213
B. Methodological Principles: The Avoidance American Provincialism and the Viability of “Psychological Projection”.....	216
II. A Guiding Narrative Theme: The Emergence and Perseverance of a Distinct Zapotec Cultural and Ethnic Identity.....	223
A. Alternate Images of Indians and Theocracy: Zapotec Exceptionalism and a Generic Affirmation of Religion.....	223
B. 4000 Years of Heroic Resistance: The Avoidance of Admixing and Preservation of Zapotec Ethnic Identity.....	226
III. The Sequence of Events: John Paddock’s Historical (Re)construction.....	229
A. Oaxaca in Advance of Monte Albán: From Oaxacan Cultural Unity to the Divergence of Zapotec and Mixtec (or Tetlamixteca) Branches.....	230

1. “A Simple and Complete Unity”: Formative-Era Oaxaca as Separate and Distinct from the Rest of Mesoamerica.....	231
2. Foreshadowing a Postclassic Reunion: The Formative-Era Cultural Divergence of Zapotecs and Tetlamixteca.....	233
B. Period I: The Early Ascent of Monte Albán: The Founding and Maintenance of “an Enormous Work of Art”.....	236
C. Period II: The Certain Onset of the Early Urbanism: “First-Generation” Civilization at Monte Albán.....	241
D. Period IIIA: Early Urbanism Continues: Assimilating Foreign Influences and the “Crystallization” of a Distinct Zapotec Identity.....	245
1. Minimizing Teotihuacan’s Role: Monte Albán IIIA Success as a Thoroughly Zapotec Accomplishment.....	246
2. Continued Peace and Unprecedented Prosperity: Admixing Averted and Independent Zapotec Initiative Reaffirmed.....	249
E. Period IIIB: “Baroque Early Urbanism” and Mixtec Others: Elaborations in Zapotec Art, Architecture and Identity Formation.....	252
1. Contemporaneous Developments in the Mixteca Region: The Emergence of Late Urbanism and Mixtec Ethnic Identity.....	253
2. Fully Florescent Monte Albán: Peak Population, Artistic Supereminence and Maximum Regional Influence.....	255
F. Period IV: Abandonment and Collapse: Introversion, Environmental Stress, Emigration and the Persistence of Zapotec Identity.....	257
1. Complementary Causes of Demise: Elitist Isolationism and Environmental Degradation.....	259
2. Collapse without Catastrophe: The End of Monte Albán, but the Persistence of Zapotec Ethnic-Cultural Identity.....	262
G. Period V: Massive Mixtec Invasion, Zapotec Perseverance and the “Reunion” of Oaxaca’s Two Great Branches.....	264
1. An Unhappy Family Reunion: Contemporaneous and Contested Zapotec and Mixtec Occupations of the Oaxaca Valley.....	265
2. Two Contrastive “Cloud Peoples”: Declining Zapotec Theocracy and Ascending Mixtec Militarism.....	268
IV. Closing Thoughts: An Expendable Zapotec Capital, but an Endurant Zapotec Cultural-Ethnic Identity.....	270
A. Beat Sensibilities and Echoes of National Character Studies: Expatriate American Interests in Ethnicity and Identity.....	272
B. Monte Albán as an Incubator of Zapotec Ethnicity: Immaterial Gauges of Cultural Excellence and a Non-Catastrophic Collapse.....	276

CHAPTER FOUR

Richard Blanton on Monte Albán as a “Disembedded Capital”: A Story of Militarism, Regional Cooperation and Religious Neutrality	282
I. A Marvelous Story, Ineloquently Told: Hard Data, Methodological Digressions and Cautionary Qualifications.....	284
II. Guiding Narrative Themes: “Disembedded Capitals,” External Threats and the Pragmatic Virtues of Neutrality.....	289
A. No Pressure, No Buoyancy: External Threats as the Primary Impetus for a “Disembedded Capital”.....	290
B. Monte Albán Exceptionalism: The Anomaly, Improbably Siting and Rapid Rise of Mesoamerica’s First City.....	291
C. Militaristic Preoccupations and Religious Neutrality: Monte Albán as an Anti-Sacred Place.....	295
III. From Cultural Ecology to Central Place Theory: “Primate Centers” versus “Disembedded Capitals”.....	296
A. The Limits of Cultural Ecology Models: Crucial Differences between Teotihuacan and Monte Albán.....	297
B. Enhanced Roles for Human Agency and Central Place Theory: Two Very Different Types of Regional Capitals.....	299
IV. The Sequence of Events: Richard Blanton’s Historical (Re)construction.....	305
A. The Period I Origins of Monte Albán: Local Concessions, Regional Cooperation, Ethnic Integration and Religious Neutrality.....	305
1. A Oaxacan Regional Alliance: Cooperative Responses to a Supposed but Elusive External Threat.....	307
2. Concessions and Compromises of Four Sorts: Locational, Commercial-Economic, Ethnic and Religious Neutrality.....	310
3. Pragmatic Religious Tolerance: Political Consensus without Religio-Ideological Consensus.....	314
B. The Unwavering Functions of Monte Albán: Administrative Decision-Making and/or Militaristic Intimidation.....	317
1. Oaxacan Statesmen and/or Bullies: Early Monte Albán as an Impartial Court of Appeals and/or a Theatre of Intimidation.....	319
2. Monte Albán as a “Military Showcase” and “Frightening Display of Terror Tactics”: A Familiar Argument.....	322
C. The Period II Retrenchment of Monte Albán: Weakened External Threats, thus Weakened Capital.....	324
D. The Period III Climax of Monte Albán: Strongest External Threats, thus Strongest Capital.....	329

1. Teotihuacan’s Crucial Role in Monte Albán’s Florescence: A Military Threat, not a Cultural Stimulus.....	330
2. Oaxacan Statesmen and/or Warriors: Religious Neutrality, Multi-Ethnic Tolerance and/or Militaristic Opportunism.....	334
E. The Period IV Collapse of Monte Albán: No External Threats, thus No Capital.....	336
F. Later Revisions to the Saga of Disembeddedness: From Regional to Interregional Perspectives.....	340
1. “Intensified Regionalism” and “Boundary Maintenance”: A Wider and Longer Prelude to the Origins of Monte Albán.....	342
2. A Revised “Inter-Regional” Story of Monte Albán’s Origins: Three Old Themes Reprised and Refined.....	345
3. The Cult of Cocijo as a Cosmological Common Denominator: A (Somewhat) Enhanced Role for Religion.....	348
V. Closing Thoughts: An Untapped Resource for Oaxacan Pride and Multi-ethnic Identity.....	352
A. In No Sense a “Sacred Place”: Demystifying the Ancient Architects and Appeal of Monte Albán.....	354
B. A Model of Religious and Ethnic Tolerance: Accommodating Permanent Diversity versus Cultural Admixing.....	358
C. Pre-Columbian Precedents for Today’s Guelaguetza: Narrative Resources for Oaxacan Pride and Exceptionalism.....	360

CHAPTER FIVE

Marcus Winter’s Story of Strategic Resource Management: Monte Albán as Part and Parcel of a pan-Oaxacan Social Evolution.....

I. Tourist Guide and/or Textbook: Popular Audiences, but a Non-Narrative Avoidance of Drama and Hyperbole.....	367
II. A Corrective to Alfonso Caso’s Two-Party Narrative: Locating Monte Albán within a Wider and Longer Story of pre-Hispanic Oaxaca.....	370
A. A Non-Narrative Style: The Avoidance of Speculation and the Absence of Storiological Appeal.....	371
B. “A Comprehensive View” of Ancient Oaxaca: Contextualizing Monte Albán and Looking Past Zapotecs and Mixtecs.....	373
III. Two Irrefutable but Unremarkable Narrative Threads: Cultural Continuity and the Interplay of Diversity and Unity.....	377
A. Continuity and Change over Time: Monte Albán as a Mere Chapter in the Long History of Oaxaca.....	377

B. Continuity and Diversity across Regions: Monte Albán as a Mere Sub-Area within Ancient Oaxaca.....	378
C. Food-Getting as the Primary Motivation: Monte Albán as a Consequence of Entirely Ordinary Incentives.....	380
IV. The Sequence of Events: Marcus Winter’s Historical (Re)construction.....	381
A. The Lithic Stage—Long Before Monte Albán: The Deep History of Oaxaca’s Regional Diversity and Cultural Continuity.....	382
1. A Very Long Pre-Ceramic Prelude to Oaxacan Village Life: 8500 Years of Hunting and Gathering.....	384
2. Continuity from Lithic Stage to Present-Day: The Deep Roots of Oaxacan Cultural Unity and Diversity.....	385
B. The Village Stage—Still Before Monte Albán: From Nomadism to Sedentary Life, Slowly En Route to Urbanism.....	387
1. Evolution toward Urbanism: Village Diversification via Centralization and Community Specialization.....	390
2. The Village-Stage Origins of Present-Day Oaxacan Life: Thousands of Years of Continuity.....	393
C. [Periods I and II] The Early Urban Stage—Monte Albán’s Origin and Ascent: Urban Genesis via Environmental Appeal and Commercial Acumen.....	395
1. An Epochal Turning Point?: Monte Albán as Oaxaca’s First, Biggest and Perhaps Only True City.....	396
2. An Ecological Explanation of Urban Genesis: Monte Albán’s Unremarkable Origins and Predictable Ascent.....	398
3. The Priority of Commerce over Warfare: Kinder, Gentler and Strictly Homegrown Oaxacan Founders.....	401
4. Founders and Allies, not Victims: Yet Another Interpretation of the Danzante Carvings and “Conquest Slabs”.....	405
D. [Periods IIIA and IIIB-IV] The Late Urban Stage—Monte Albán’s Peak and Decline: From Trading Relationships to Tribute Demands, then Collapse.....	409
1. Demoting Monte Albán from Special to Normal: The Zapotec Capital’s Participation in Wider Oaxacan and Mesoamerican Patterns.....	411
2. Monte Albán’s Collapse: Exhausting Natural Resources and Overextending Tribute Demands, or Maybe Not.....	414
E. [Period V] The City-State Stage—Monte Albán’s Reversion to Irrelevance: The Prospect of Unprecedented Post-Classic Prosperity.....	416
1. The Emergence of City-States: Unprecedented Population Surges and Region-wide Political Stability.....	416
2. Regularizing Monte Albán: A City but not a State, a Forerunner but not the Apex of Ancient Oaxacan History.....	419
3. From Modest Interest to No Interest: Mixtec, Aztec and Spaniard Indifference toward the Site of Monte Albán.....	423

V. Closing Thoughts and Narrative Themes: Regularizing the Rave-Inducing Capital of Monte Albán.....	426
A. An Epic Plotline Peopled by Bland Protagonists: Nothing Shocking, Little Remarkable.....	427
B. A Story of Strategic Resource Management: Monte Albán as Part and Parcel of Oaxacan Cultural Continuity.....	430

CHAPTER SIX

Kent Flannery and Joyce Marcus’s “Actor-Centered” Story of Oaxacan Social Evolution: Charismatic Leadership and an Illusion of Control.....

I. An “Action Theory” Approach: Reimagining Zapotecs as Rational, Pragmatic, Self-Serving “Social Actors”.....	440
A. Mediating pre-Hispanic Oaxacans’ Strangeness and Familiarity: The Practicality of “the Ancient Zapotec Mind”.....	443
B. Mediating Individual Initiative and Systemic Constraints: An Unprecedented Emphasis on Personal Leadership Choices.....	446
II. A Guiding Narrative Theme: Illusions of Control via the Paradox of Thoughtful Decisions and Unintended Consequences.....	448
A. Personal Initiative and Unpredicted Outcomes: Escaping from and Acquiescing to “the System”.....	449
B. The Poignancy of Unpredictability: Specific Oaxacan Histories and Universalistic Perplexities.....	451
III. The Sequence of Events: Kent Flannery and Joyce Marcus’s Historical (Re)construction.....	452
A. The Formative, Pre-Urban Era: Oaxaca in Advance of Monte Albán.....	452
1. Long Before Monte Albán: Early Oaxacan Social Evolution via Deliberate Decisions and Unintended Consequences.....	455
2. Still Before Monte Albán: Charismatic Leadership, Inklings of Urbanism and Precedents to the Great Zapotec Capital.....	458
3. Just Before Monte Albán: Increasing Greed, Selfishness, Contestation, Violence and Aggression.....	463
4. An Ongoing Pattern of Selfishness and Serendipity: Ever-Escalating Violence and the Inadvertent Creation of a “Buffer Zone”.....	468
B. The Early Period I Origins of Monte Albán: Unpredicted and Unprecedented Urbanism.....	472
1. The Mechanism of Urban Origins: A Startling and Stupendous, but not Aberrant Instance of Synoikism.....	472

2. Early Period I Events and Actors: Preemptive Diplomacy and a Strategic Migration from San José Mogote to Monte Albán.....	478
3. Two Narrative Adjustments: Similarly Astute but More Ruthless Rulers and More Ethnically Homogeneous Residents.....	480
4. Yet Another Danzante Interpretation: Evidence of Single-Minded Militarism, Continuity with San José Mogote and Ethnic Homogeneity....	484
C. The Late Period I Transition from Chiefdom toward State: Inadvertent Zapotec Ethnogenesis.....	486
1. Hawaiian-Oaxaca Parallels: Leadership Decisions, Manpower Advantages and a Not-Inevitable Transition to Statehood.....	488
2. Momentum toward Statehood: 400 Years of “Spectacular Demographic and Militaristic Expansion”	491
3. Unintended Consequences of the “Piedmont Strategy”: Military Motives but Cultural, Artistic and Intellectual Ramifications.....	492
D. The Period II Transition from State toward Empire: Political Climax before Cultural Florescence.....	496
1. A Surprising Pre-Classic Climax: Single-Minded Leaders, Spectacular Growth and Maximal Regional Influence.....	498
2. Manufacturing Royal Lineages: Overbearing Leaders and/or Overbearing Applications of Action Theory.....	502
3. Imagining Propagandistic Purposes at Every Turn: Ballcourts, Two-Room Temples and Building J.....	506
4. Axiomatic Action Theory and Competitive Authoritarianisms: Cross-fertilizing Zapotec and Maya Leadership Styles.....	509
E. The Period III “Golden Age” of the Zapotecs: Growing City, Shrinking State.....	511
1. Classic-Era Monte Albán: Considered Consolidation and Predictably Unpredictable Consequences.....	513
2. A Postclassic-like Classic Era: Generic Action Theory Leaders and Leadership Styles.....	517
3. “Royal Propaganda”: More Intimidation, More Fabricated Semi-Divine Lineages, Same Old Priorities.....	519
4. Reassessing the Teotihuacan-Monte Albán Connection: “Skilled Diplomacy” and the Pretense of Support.....	523
5. Transforming Obstacles into Opportunities: Cagey Oaxacan Rulers and Cagey Archaeologist-Authors.....	527
F. The Period IV & V Decline and Abandonment: Imagining an “Actor-Centered” Ending to the Zapotec Capital.....	529
1. Leadership Decisions and the Decline of Monte Albán: Outmaneuvered and/or Outmaneuvering Themselves.....	530

2. Self-Deluding Propaganda: Monte Albán Rulers as Resources rather than Agents of Political Manipulation.....	533
IV. Closing Thoughts: Three Leaderly Tensions of Specific and General Interest.....	535
A. Compelling versus Despicable Leaders: Proposing Inspiring Models and/or Engendering Cynicism.....	537
B. Religious versus Irreligious Leaders: Exemptions from and/or Investments in “the Ancient Zapotec Mind”.....	538
C. Commanding versus Unavailing Leaders: Deliberate Decisions, Unintended Consequences and the Illusion of Control.....	543

CHAPTER SEVEN

Arthur Joyce’s Poststructural Rereading of Oaxacan Social History: A Story of Sacred Spaces, Rituals and the Agency of Commoners.....

I. A First Guiding Narrative Theme: Accentuating the Agency and Non-Compliance of Commoners.....	551
II. A Second Guiding Narrative Theme: Reviving a Determinative Role for Religion, Ritual and “Sacred Space”.....	555
A. The “Archaic Consciousness” of Ancient Oaxacans: Non-Modern Priorities and Religious Pre-Occupations.....	557
B. Sacred Spaces as Ritual Contexts: Negotiating Cosmological and Sociological “Sacred Covenants”.....	563
III. The Sequence of Events: Arthur Joyce’s Historical (Re)construction.....	567
A. The Formative, Pre-Urban Era: The Valley of Oaxaca in Advance of Monte Albán.....	568
1. Long Before Monte Albán: Barrio-Specific Ceremonial Precincts and Initial Early Formative “Co-Resident Groups”.....	569
2. Still Before Monte Albán: The Emergence of True Ceremonial Centers, Community Identities and Rising Inequalities.....	573
3. Just Before Monte Albán: The Appropriation of a Ceremonial Center and Exclusionary versus Communal Forms of Authority.....	578
B. [Early Period I] The Origins of Monte Albán: Disillusionment, Commoner Agency, a Sacred Mountain and a New Religious Movement.....	583
1. Religiously Motivated Discontent at San José Mogote: The Unappeal of Overbearing Religio-Civic Authorities.....	584
2. Religiously Motivated Site-Selection at Monte Albán: The Appeal of a “Cosmic Mountain” and “Axis Mundi”.....	586

C. [Periods I & II] The Ascent of Monte Albán: Inclusive Sacred Space and Healthy Maintenance of the Social Contract.....	590
1. Tradition-based Innovation: Linking the Old Sacred Covenant to New Levels of Human Sacrifice and Warfare.....	591
2. Monte Albán as “Sacred Space”: An Axis Mundi , Imago Mundi and Site for Ritual Reenactments of Cosmogony.....	593
3. Elite and Non-Elite Cooperation: An Inclusive Great Plaza and a Preclassic “Golden Age” of Monte Albán.....	596
D. [Period III] Classic-Era Monte Albán: Increasingly Exclusive Sacred Space and Breaches of the Social Contract.....	598
1. Early Classic Exclusionary Modes of Authority: Overreaching Elites and Disaffected, thus Rebellious Non-Elites.....	599
2. Unprecedentedly Authoritarian Forms of Governance, but Declining Economic and Political Influence.....	601
3. Late Classic Appropriations of the Main Plaza: Dominating Elites and Disengaged, thus Liberated Non-Elites.....	603
4. The Persistent Agency and Non-Compliance of Non-Elites: Exclusion Transformed into Opportunity.....	605
E. [Periods IV & V] The Collapse and Aftermath of Monte Albán: Short-Sighted Rulers, Recalcitrant Commoners and Resilient Sacred Space.....	607
1. Poststructural Explanations of Collapse: Elite Introversion and Non-Elite Disaffected Independence.....	608
2. Early Postclassic Revalorizations: Frequent, Extensive and Unregulated Ritualizing in the Main Plaza.....	610
3. Late Postclassic Political Irrelevance and Religious Prestige: The Monte Albán Ruins as a Religio-Cultural Resource.....	612
IV. Closing Thoughts: Protagonist Commoners, Antagonist Nobles and the History of a Sacred Place.....	616
A. A Poststructural Endorsement of Populism: The Dignity, Aplomb and Agency of Common People.....	617
B. Religion Reaffirmed: Ceremonial Plazas as Sites of Religious Devotion and Socio-Economic Negotiation.....	620
C. Monte Albán as Forever a “Sacred Space”: Enduring Respect for Ordinary People and Special Places.....	624
Selected Bibliography.....	630