

The Midwest Regional Post-Doctoral Training Program in Eating Disorders Research is currently inviting applications for the 2022 class to begin fellowship in the summer of 2022. This NIMH-funded post-doctoral T32 fellowship is located at three sites: University of Chicago, University of Minnesota, and Sanford Research/University of North Dakota. Post-doctoral training and mentorship is available in a wide variety of areas of eating disorders research across the three sites.

Potential applicants are encouraged to contact the T32 Program Co-Directors, Scott Crow and Carol Peterson, or the individual site directors:

University of Minnesota

Scott Crow, MD

612-273-9807

crowx002@umn.edu

Carol Peterson, PhD

612-273-9811

peter161@umn.edu

University of North Dakota/Sanford Research

Stephen Wonderlich, PhD

701-365-4910

stephen.wonderlich@sanfordhealth.org

University of Chicago

Jennifer Wildes, PhD

773-702-9277

jwildes@uchicago.edu

Applicants are requested to submit the following materials:

- A letter of intent and statement of interests
- Curriculum vitae
- Reprints of scientific publications
- Three letters of reference, with one of the letters from a director of training (if background is in psychology), residency training director (if background is in psychiatry/medicine), or equivalent figure if training is in other disciplines

Application materials are currently being accepted for all sites. The application deadline is September 30, 2021, but applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until slots are filled.