Student Spotlight - Cindy Turner

Cindy Turner is a first year MPP student at Harris. Prior to starting graduate school, she studied Philosophy and Economics at the University of Texas at Austin. Throughout undergrad, Cindy engaged with internships at the Texas legislature, through which she observed an abundance of health policy issues related to Medicare access, reproductive rights, and maternal health outcomes. She spent last year serving as an Americorps member with American Gateways, an immigration legal clinic, and observed how health care resources were scarce and mismanaged. These experiences have impressed upon her a need for policy that improves access to health care.

Currently, Cindy is an RA with Bridging the Gap: Reducing Disparities in Diabetes Care program, where she is evaluating the benefits of health partnerships between clinics and other community organizations. In addition, being apart of GPHAP allows Cindy to think outside of the constraints of policy by recognizing the ways in which different systems come together to tackle issues of health equity.

Upcoming Events

Funding for Attending Conferences

GPHAP has a small budget for student attendance at conferences. We can make this funding available for virtual as well as in-person conferences (in-person conferences for when it is safe to travel). These are small amounts of funding and you must be up-to-date on your co-curriculars and GPHAP courses to be eligible for this funding. The conference counts as a co-curricular, and the co-curricular reflection must be uploaded onto Canvas in order to receive the funding in the form of reimbursement. If anyone needs the funding to be provided up front, this can be arranged by contacting Laura at lbotwinick@uchicago.edu. The application for funding is here.
