Thursday, Nov 21: IPR Distinguished Lecture - Child Health as Human Capital

Fall 2019 Distinguished Public Policy Lecture: "Child Health as Human Capital" by Janet Currie, Henry Putnam Professor of Economics and Public Affairs and Co-Director of the Center for Health and Wellbeing, Princeton University

Child health is increasingly understood to be a critical form of human capital, but only recently have we begun to understand how valuable it is and how better to support its development. This lecture by Janet Currie, the Henry Putnam Professor of Economics and Public Affairs at Princeton University, provides an overview of recent work demonstrating the key role of public insurance in supporting longer-term human capital development, as well as pointing to improvements in child mental health as an especially important mechanism.

Currie is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, National Academy of Medicine, and American Academy of Art and Sciences. She has written about early intervention programs, programs to expand health insurance and improve healthcare, public housing, and food and nutrition programs. Her current research focuses on socioeconomic differences in child health and environmental threats to children's health.

RSVP is required by Monday, November 18.

Thursday, December 5: Merging Parallel Tracks: Integrating Behavioral and Social Health to Provide Whole-Person Care

Front-line clinicians and community health workers see firsthand how the intersection of behavioral and social health impacts patients - but often adopt solutions in isolation. In this 60-minute interactive webinar, three primary care leaders discuss opportunities to integrate behavioral and social health to reduce fragmentation in primary care transformation. Panelists will share strategies and examples of how they have sustainably transformed their care models to better match patients' needs and how they have extended these approaches into their communities to support population health.

- Damon Francis, MD, Chief Clinical Officer, Health Leads
- Michael Tang, MD, Chief Behavioral Health Officer, The Dimock Center
- Wendi Vierra, Ph.D., Director of Operations, Behavioral Health, Neighborhood Healthcare
- Therese Wetterman, MPH, Director, Program, Health Leads (Moderator)
