4816	006619	India's Struggle for Freedom : Together forever	Documentary	Freedom Struggle		A film is taking us into the history which shows how Muslims also fought for India's freedom and how they felt that they were together forever. It explores history right from the 1857 revolt. On the 10th May, 1857 Indian soldiers revolted in Meerut and marched to Delhi. The next day, Bahadur Shah Zafar was declared Emperor of Hindustan. He asked the Hindus and Muslims to join hands in their fight for freedom which was the best of all the gifts of God. After the partition, majority of Muslims decided to stay in India for them India was their home, their heritage & their future was bound with that of their fellow countrymen. This was reemphasised by Dr. Zakir Hussain when he was elected President of India: "I pledge myself to the service of the totality of my country's culture....The whole of Bharat is my home and the people are my family." 4817	006620	India's Struggle for Freedom - VII : Victory At Bardoli	Documentary	Freedom Struggle		Part 7 of the series India's Struggle for Independence, this film covers the period 1922-28. The first non-cooperation movement launched after the Nagpur Congress of 1920 was the beginning of a new era in India's struggle for freedom. At the 1912 Gaya session of the Congress surfaced some ideological differences among leaders. In June 1923, the Nagpur police banned a procession which was carrying the National Flag. On September 15, 1923 the Congress and the Swarajya Party arrived at a compromise on the question of the Council entry. On January 12, 1924 Gandhiji was in Yervada prison, Poona was shifted to Sasoon Hospital. Among the various events that took place, the British Commission under Sir John Simon became very notorious. Congress boycotted this Commission. At Bardoli, Sardar Patel led farmers against the British Govt.'s decision to jack up the land assessment by 22% even when there was no increase in agricultural production. The non-violent Bardoli satyagraha came out victorious for the just cause.	English	1984	20.35	Col	Ramesh D. Patel	Cinematography - M. S. Patwari, Sound - F. A. Waris, Editing - Ramesh D. Patel & U. 5028	006882	India's Struggle for Freedom : Roots of Democracy ( Part - I )	Documentary	Public Administration	Panchayat Raj / Local Bodies	This film traces the history of democracy in India. The concept of democracy was known to the people of Mohan-jo-daro. By the 5th century BC, village republics were established by the Ujjain's at Vaishali, in present day North Bihar. The concept of elected government in this village republic was perhaps as advanced as modern democracies. Every Indian ruler encouraged the concept of the local self government. Things changed when the East India Company established the Municipal Corporation of Madras in 1687 on the pattern of the English Burroughs of those days. In 1726, municipal committees were set up in Calcutta and Bombay. But Indians had no say in their administration! The Indian civilization had survived because of the village committees or the Panchayat, says this film.	English	1986	17.14	Col	P. C. Sharma	Cinematography - S. N. Misra, Ani Pho. - M. S. 5030	006884	India's Struggle for Freedom : Roots of Democracy ( Part - II )	Documentary	Political Science	Parliament / State	At the end of India's first war of independence in 1858, the administration of the country passed on to the British Crown. Committees and local agencies were appointed in large towns to assist the District Magistrates in raising funds for the police and conservancy services. Indians had to fight long battles with the British for their legitimate rights to look after their own affairs. Under pressure, the British rulers had to decentralise power in phases. But still power to the people was a long cherished dream. After independence, India opted for universal adult franchise to elect members of parliament, state legislatures, district boards and the village Panchayat.	English	1986	15.01	Col	P. C. 5077	006942	Sarod	Documentary	Arts	Music	India's string instrument Sarod evolved from the Rabab, which was originated in Persia. It was Ghulam Bandegi Khan Bangesh, son of Mohammed Hashmi Khan Bangesh who modified the Rabab into the Sarod in Rewa (Madhya Pradesh). He substituted the wooden chest of the Rabab with a steel one and switched from fibre strings to steel ones. His mother tongue being Push to, he picked the name for the instrument from the Persian language, Sarood, which means music or melody. Later the name jettisoned an 'o' and was called Sarod. While tracing the history of musicians who played this instrument, this film also focuses on the contemporary scene. Among Sarod players today, only five styles of the trend setters are in vogue. But the man who revolutionised the technique of Sarod playing is Ustad Amjad Ali Khan, who hails from the family that introduced the Sarod to the world. This film includes an interview with the Sarod maestro, including his teaching session when the raag Bihag is being played. 5112	006995	Indias Struggle for Freedom : Swaraj Party - A Glorious Chapter	Documentary	Freedom Struggle		Here is a narration of the exemplary role played by the members of the Swaraj Party, which was formed within the Congress during 1923-28. When Gandhi's non-cooperation movement was practised by the nation, certain disturbances at Chauri Chaura and other places hurt Gandhiji's sentiments and he withdrew his movement. He was himself arrested by the British. Already several other leaders such as Motilal Nehru, CR Das, Lala Lajpat Rai were in prison. The British Administrators were all out to crush the movement. CR Das argued that the new system of the British rule known as Diarchy was absolutely elitist in nature. There were debates among pro- and no-changers within the Congress. At the Gaya Session of the Congress in 1922 Das announced his intentions to form a party within the Congress. The Swaraj Party came into existence on January 1, 1923. 5117	007084	Pata Paintings of Orissa	Documentary	Arts	Painting / Drawing	At Puri in Orissa, Rath Yatra or the festival of chariots takes place every year in the month of Ashadh (July), usually when the moon is young. Fifteen days before the festival, the three deities (Jagannath, Balabhadra and Subhadra) are taken out for a ritual bath. During the next fifteen days when the deities are recovering and resting, they are presented to the pilgrims in the form of paintings (chitra). These paintings are called patachitra. They are painted by the artists especially appointed by the King of Puri, who is traditionally the high priest of the temple of Jagannath. While working on these paintings which will be substituted for the deities, the painters or chitrahars are supposed to strictly observe certain rules. To this day, pata chitra is confined to religious adoration. Because of their economic deprivation, many chitrahars have gone back to their original occupation of sculpting and wood carving. This film while tracing the history of patachitra, reveals the contemporary conditions of the chitrahars and their art of patachitra. 5128	007005	Flag and Freedom	Documentary	Freedom Struggle		A film narrating the history of the tri-colour, the National Flag of India, and its evolution through different periods of our freedom struggle. Flags were in common use in India for many centuries. In the 17th century, the British brought the Union Jack which was to fly over India for nearly 200 years. National awakening after 1857 led to the birth of freedom movement. The Indian National Congress came into being in 1885 but it had no flag then. From the first attempts to create a national flag at Parsi Bagan Square in Calcutta in 1906, this film shows how different flags were designed and used during successive stages of India's freedom movement. The Union Jack was finally replaced by the Indian national flag in 1947. The present tri-colour was accepted by the Constituent Assembly on July 22, 1947.	English	1987	20.29	Col	Y. N. 5179	007073	Contemporary Indian Sculpture	Documentary	Arts	Archaeology	In course of last two decades, sculpture has become field of intense creative activity. The modern Indian sculpture had to reach the present state through travails spread over near about century. The modernists who came into the scene in the '40s revolted against the practice of mimicking the visible world in the art of their predecessors. But they also, as this film underlines, themselves fell prey to mimicking linguistics and stylistics of the western avant-garde. However, there were some individual achievements. It was Ramkinkar Baij, the almost forgotten loner of the '40s, who became a potent factor in the resurgence of sculptural activities in India on a new plane. 5270	007197	Tears and Smiles	Documentary	Sociology	Relief & Rehabilitation	The Sri Lankan ethnic crisis took a violent turn in July 1983. Thousands of Sri Lankan Tamils started fleeing their country and took refuge on the Indian soil. On humanitarian grounds India gave them shelter, food, clothing and all other facilities, and also made prolonged efforts to mediate between warring factions and the Sri Lankan government for a political solution. This eventually resulted in the Indo-Sri Lanka Accord. As per the agreement, India started repatriating Sri Lankan refugees back to their soil as normalcy prevailed. This film presents those critical times, life of refugees in camps and their repatriation through can did filming and interviews.	English	1988	25.39	Col	R. Krishna Mohan	Cinematography - N. 5277	007210	Development of Inland Fisheries	Documentary	Agriculture	Fisheries	Here is a detailed demonstration showing the latest methods of managing inland fisheries in India. India's resources of inland fisheries are known to be among the richest in the world. The major rivers and their tributaries stretch over an area of about 29,000 km. Reservoirs and lakes cover about 1.5 million hectares and culturable tanks and ponds about 0.75 million hectares. The country's demand for fish is about 10 million tonnes, but the present (1988) production is about 2.94 million tonnes only. The reasons are not far to seek. The traditional fish culture practices yield poor catches, and hence the need to scientifically develop inland fisheries. 5326	007322	Kanaka - Purandara	Documentary	Biography	Saints	An autobiographical about the saints Kanaka and Purandara who led the Bhakti movement in Karnatka, Purandara was born Srinivasa Nayaka. Purandara was a Brahmin, Kanaka a sphere by birth. The distinguishing feature of the Bhakti movement was that for the first time in India, theology was spoken in a language other than Sanskrit. It was spoken in the mother tongue of the local people. The Bhakti movement in Hampi was led by Vyasateertha. Vyasateertha headed a monastic organisation called Vyasakoota, which conducted its debates in Sanskrit. This made it a narrowly sectarian and frequently degenerated into avid scholasticism. Another group emerged out of it - Dasakoota, which rejected considerations of caste, class and privilege. The Dasakoota members spoke in people's language, Kannada. 5333	007290	Energy Scenario (Urja Drushya Lekh)	Documentary	Science & Technology	Power Generation	During the past forty years since independence, India has achieved a tremendous progress in generation and distribution of energy from various sources. Coal mining started in India in 1774 and since then coal has been serving the country's energy requirements. Coal satisfied about 60% of the country's energy requirement. Apart from power-grade coal, there are also rich reserves of lignite mostly at Neyveli in Tamil Nadu. Lignite is yet another source of power. As the demand for energy grew rapidly and substantially, India had to diversify its sources of supply. Almost 2/3 of India's total consumption of oil is met by domestic production. Hydro power is another important source of energy in India. A variety of multi-purpose hydro electric power stations have been set up in all regions of the country. India has also achieved a substantial progress in nuclear power generation. Here is a survey of India's overall energy scenario during the past four decades. 5390	007361	Siddheshwari	Documentary	Biography	Singer	A film about the great thumri singer Siddheshwari Devi, who was born on August 8, 1902, breaking all conventional modes of biographical or documentary film making, this film becomes a work of transgression. It transgresses both home and dream. Like a Sufi wanderer, it celebrates the life of exile. No space holds, no truth encompasses, no identity is the final. Here is a film that takes the 'documentary' non-representational to its limits, turning the fictional material natural to a biography into a presentation, and the objects and locations into an imaginative becoming of music. Dr. Ambedkar dedicated his life to the cause of the downtrodden. Born of humble parents, Bhimrao the 14th child of an army subedar had his primary schooling in Dapoli in Konkan and at Satara in Maharashtra. Aided by scholarships, brilliant Bhimrao attended college in Bombay. Later he went to Columbia University in New York. He set up his legal practice in Bombay High Court in 1924. As a member of the Bombay Legislative Assembly, an active public career was already in the making. A public pond at Mahad in Kolaba District of Maharashtra was claimed by caste Hindus as private property. Harijans were being denied their civic right of drawing water from this pond. In 1927, Ambedkar and his followers led a satyagraha to protest against this unjust practice. From here his protracted battle followed. He emerged as the undisputed leader of the depressed classes who lovingly called him Babasaheb. He died in Delhi on December 6, 1956 at the age of 65. 5630	007658	Forest Fires : Prevention and Control	Documentary	Education	Fire Fighting	That the cycle of ecological ruin starts with deforestation and environmental pollution is a well established truth. There are various forces that are responsible for destruction of forests: fire is one of them. The trees get burned, forests become dry and thin and diseased. Ground vegetation gets destroyed. Fires extending for miles together cause gradual destruction of forests and ultimate ruination of environment. The solution lies in Integrated Forest Fire Control Programme and its dedicated execution for prevention and control of forest fires. The film covers the entire range of Forest Fire Control Programme envisaged by FAO/UNDP/GOI projects: and stresses upon the need for viewing the forests and people as an inter-related reality.	English	1992	21.15	Col	Sunil Ghosh	Cinematography - Sushil Chopra &amp; Sushil Roy, Sound - G. 5667	007716	Importance of Industrial Co - Generation	Documentary	Industries	Major Industries	Heat &amp; power are the two basic inputs of industry. These inputs are obtained through different process routes. Heat is obtained by burning fossil fuels within the industry &amp; power is obtained by burning fuels in power houses. This film shows how power can be produced by using the heat which is generated to run a particular process. in other words steam is used to co-generate power besides running the machinery. It has been estimated that the total thermal power generation in this country stood at 170 Billion units. This film shows in conventional power generation almost 48% is lost by being dumped into the atmosphere. in other words the colossal waste of energy is so great that the method of co-generation which enables industrialists to use this waste power (heat) can revolutionise conservation of power in this country. This film shows how in a co-generation plant degradation of heat is done only upto a certain level thus saving excess heat to create more power. Thus this film shows the work potential of steam which would otherwise go waste. Examples are given of the Century rayon Plant at Kalyan ; Shriram Foods &amp; Fertilizers- Delhi ; the ONGC Plant at Uran in Maharashtra. These case studies prove the major advantages of co-generation. In the end it is emphasised that the Government of India, the financial institutions &amp; state electricity boards have been supporting the installation of co-generation systems.	English	1992	14.47	Col	Serbjeet Singh	Cinematography - Jehangir Chaudhary Sound - Editing - Deepak Desai

5727	007799	The Universe : Looking Down At Mother Earth ( Episode 7 )	Documentary	Science & Technology	Meteorology	While holidaying with their maternal uncle Asha (age 12) and Antu (age10) discovered that from the roof of their house all the objects like buildings, roads and cars moving on road looks smaller than their usual size. Mama further explains that how going far away we can see the whole earth at one view. This has become possible by sending a satellite in the space. What is a satellite, how it is launched into space and what are its benefits? With the help of pictures, video films and actual applications the answers to these questions are given in this film. Children are shown how a satellite can spy, how we can talk on phone with distant foreign cities through communication satellite, how we can forecast the weather conditions, and the remote sensing we can find out mineral resources, underground sources, study the topography of our land and mountains. We show the history of space science in our country and the progress done by us into this field. 5729	007801	Abhiyan (The Campaign)	Documentary	Sociology	Tribals	The story of “Abhiyan” revolves round a tribal village “Sonpada” located in a backward area of the state of Maharashtra. The villagers are struggling to earn their livelihood with the help of relief work run by Government near the village. The villagers find it extremely hard to support themselves and their families with the meagre wage they earn every week. The traditional way of purchasing their ration on credit from the local shop-owner adds to their agony. The system forbids them to be self dependant as they are illiterate and ignorant till such time when an outsider reaches the village and takes up the task of organising the villagers for looking after themselves. The ‘Outsider’ social activist attempts to form a Co-operative Society and educates young villagers to run it. He gets Close to a government Schemes to the village. Ones, aware of their rights villagers learn to break the traditional bonds of village economic system. The first step in this direction is to produce their own goods, sell in the market and buy ration with the money, thus earned. The film conveys the message of self-dependence. No matter how much help is given to a village from outside only self-help system can be good for a common man and the country.	Hindi	1993	58.51	Col	Ashok Ojha	Cinematography - Sushil Rajpal  Sound - Arun Chakravarty  Editing - Chakradhar Sahu  Music - Shaily Shailendra  Artist - T. 5859	007977	Rajkumar College : A Citadel of Learning	Documentary	Education	Education Institutions	Public schools are not places where students simply come and go, but have educational settlements for young adolescents, aiming at the full maturing of their personality. And that is what is said in the story of Rajkumar College a public school of Raipur, in Madhya Pradesh. The college was started in the year 1894, with an initial intention of providing modern education to sections of the royal families and the Jamindars of the then Central Provinces. Sir Andrew Fraser the then Chief Commissioner of Central Province was the founder of the college. After the formation of "Indian Public Schools Conference" in the year 1940, the Rajkumar College was open to all irrespective of caste, creed and colour. This brought a sense of democratisation. Today this 100 year old college is one of the leading public schools in India, offering tuition at the 10 + 2 level to 700 boys and girls. Having all modern facilities, the college campus is spread over 150 acres of land. The motto of Rajkumar College says: "A king is worshipped in his kingdom, A learned man is worshipped the world over". 5875	007997	Baburamer Babua	Short Fiction	Sociology	Castism / Untouchability / Apartheidism	"Baburam belonging to a low caste is in casual employment with railways in the remote station of Chowhatta in West Bengal. He is hard working, honest and noble hearted. Baburam married Sukhia but they could not have a child of their fifteen years married life. But one day fortune seemed to smile on the couple. A Brahmin woman, in advanced stage of pregnancy and abandoned by her husband, came to the local hospital for delivery. The woman died after giving birth to a boy. A couple of days passed, but nobody came to claim the child. The hospital doctor contacted some Brahmin families of the town, asking them to adopt the boy, but nobody volunteered. Baburam went to the doctor with the request that he would take the boy to his home and he and his wife would bring him up. Baburam and Sukhia were overjoyed. The child, they believed, had come to grace their home as Ramchandra who once blessed the untouchable with his holy touch. They called the boy as Babua. But now the nightmare started of unknown fear of somebody trying to snatch the child from him. Fearing the ridicule of the neighbours, the couple leave the village with child and arrive at Chowhatta. Even after so many years, Baburam could not still overcome the feeling that he had committed a sin by adopting a Brahmin child under false identity. Hence soon he realises that the so called gentlemen society could be absolutely unscrupulous and Sukhia shows his feelings. Since the illusion had gone he is now ready to face up to reality with courage in both hands. The film deals with adoption of child and un touchability." She wants to study the life of the village people and is known to investigate in detail. Deepak arrives in the village from Lucknow after completing his Masters degree in Agriculture. He is also influenced by Masterjee's noble thoughts. His educated brain utilises for the villagers but his father Thakur Singh wants him to serve in the city and become a big Government officer. Masterjee has been trying since a few years for a canal for the proper irrigation of the unfertile lands but his efforts have been secretly stopped by Thakurjee. One day Masterjee, his sister Jyoti and her friend Uma come and propose before Thakurjee to organise a meeting and to the villagers to unite and co operate in turning all the huge areas of infertile lands into cultivatable land. Masterjee calls for a meeting and there is a large gathering of the villagers. He explains to them about his scheme but some turn down and criticise him. He gets more upset and annoyed. Finally he collapses in the meet in and breathes his last. Deepak makes his father completely responsible for the untimely death of a noble person like Masterjee which results in a dramatic clash between father and son. Deepak leaves his house in anger and goes back to the city to fetch a job. Jyoti and Uma come to know about this. Uma meets Deepak at Lucknow and snubs him for his cowardness in deserting Jyoti in a pathetic condition. Deepak realises his mistake and returns to the village and promises Jyoti that he would never go back to the city and to work with her to fulfil the dreams and aims of Masterjee. Jyoti is happy. In the public meeting, Deepak encourages all the villagers to unite and work for	Hindi	1996	68.12	Col	Sisir K. 5937	008082	Puttana Prapancha	Short Fiction	Sociology		"Puttana Prapancha" is a story of an innocent love of child juxtaposed to the selfish exploitative world of adults. Putta - thus called by everyone in the village Nandidoddi. The story weaves around a 6 year old boy, an orphan came with a nomadic group that visited the village about 4 years ago who left the child behind and gone since then, the boy growing at the mercy of the villagers is given shelter in the temple by the priest of the temple. putta helps the priest Keshava Acharya, William, the blacksmith, Imam and Thimma. Shivmma, the school teacher, a widow feels for him and adopted him and persuaded him to come to school where he can learn reading and writing and also assured of mid-day meal and thus she stops exploitation of Putta by villagers. In anger, villagers decide to teach a lesson to Putta by closing their doors to him. Being rejected by everybody, putta goes from away from the village with grief, without telling anyone next day the villagers are shocked to see Putta fallen unconscious in the mud and they feel guilty and handed over Putta to Shivamma for taking care. the story of 'Puttana Prapancha' thus exposing the shallow, selfish attitude of the elders in the light of child's innocent, universal love, and making them feel guilty and repent for their behaviour, transforming them to bind together with human concern and love."	Kannada	1996	61.49	Col	Anil Kumar	Cinematography - S. 5978	008135	Nabakalebar	Documentary	Religion	Hinduism	Nabakalebar means acquiring new bodies by Lord Jagannatha, Balabhadra, Subhadra and Sudarshana. The ritual of Nabakalebar must be performed once between roughly every 12-19 years, whenever the Hindu calendar shows an extra month of "ASHADHA". The image of Lord Jagannatha is different from other idols. It is made of wood. Outside the main shrine of Puri, Kakatpur has the only other temple for Mother Bimala, the auspicious one. At night, the Goddess arrives in the Pati Mahapatra's dream and leaves precise instructions on the path to the holy trees from which the new idols for the deity are to be carved. In accordance to tradition, the search can begin only with the first sign post, at the Sudarshan Daru, a tree with reddish hue which must be located according to exact specifications. The Balabhadra Daru is discovered according to its geographical position. The distinctive features of the Subhadra Daru are equally specific. The search for Jagannath Daru from which the principal deity can be carved is the one which has the most complex and exacting combination of auspicious feature. The ceremony ends in the great festivals of chariots, the Ratha Yatra, the grandest of the grand festivals of the Indian subcontinent.	English	1997	20.03	Col	K. G. Das	Cinematography - Om Chand & S. 6380	008612	Man Grove of Sundaraban	Documentary	Environment	Conservation	This is a documentary film about Man and Mangrove of Sunderbans. The Sunderban is the world's largest delta area, where the Ganga & Brahmaputra Rivers meet at the Bay of Bengal. In fact, 65% of the total Mangrove forest of India is located in the district of North and South 24 Parganas, which are spread over the 9360 sq. Kilometres. All over the world, 48 varieties of the mangrove species have been identified and the Sunderbans have over 30 of them. Out of this, 30 mangrove plants Sundari tree, Golpata, Kanktree Bakul Kankra, Dhundhul, Pashur, Gorjon are of very important nature. The dilemma of development in the Sunderbans rises out of the fact that progress for mankind can in the same breath spell danger for nature. Mankind in the Sunderbans is caught in an unrelenting battle against the forces of nature, be it wild life, or the vagaries of the environment. It is battle ideally no one should lose, because here man and nature are locked in a combat where the destruction of one will inevitably lead to the destruction of the other. 6449	008708	A Few Things I Know About Her	Documentary	Biography	Religious Leaders	Mirabai is a cultural icon and her images and stories swamp our popular culture. The conflicts expressed in her poetry however, do not always tally with this popularly held belief. The film explores some of these contradictions. We discover some alternate traditions of Mira and a personal connection is formed with this "Mystic Saint", who lived and died 500 years ago. We travel from the towns and villages of Rajasthan to the vast desert, in search of Mira. All the characters we meet have been living with Mira in different ways and in the telling of her story, they often tell us their own. Sometimes there are more than two sides to a story; sometimes there are a hundred. Some of the themes the film explores are relativity of history, validity of the personal in religion and always there is Mira, singing for us in various voices. 6507	008774	Krishna Maai ( S. V. )	Documenta ry	Geograph y & Tourism	Rivers	The film attempts to probe the physical, cultural and spiritual landscape with the watery fingers of the Krishna River and its tributaries. Often referred to as a metaphor for time, a river indeed unfolds layers of stories on its banks. If the banks of the Krishna reverberated with Abhangs and Vachanas- the devotional songs of the bhakti saints of Maharashtra and Karnataka, in its flowing waters one can hear the clashing of swords and the sounds of crumbling empires as well. Nevertheless, knowing no cultural or linguistic boundaries, it runs like a living force uniting the fractured existences of man-made differences. With the central theme of "a quest for a God" the film attempts to unveil the river as a symbol of inter-cultural harmony. It is an ode to the spirit of this land which through the ages, has been all including and has accommodated so many different truths. 6704	009019	Bio - diesel	Documentary	Science & Technology	Biotechnology	The steady increase of population in India over the years has resulted in greater consumption of petroleum fuel by transport vehicles and big industries consumption of petroleum products, economic growth and unabated growth in population are interlinked. While petroleum consumption in India during 1970-1971 was 17.9 million tonnes, during 2000-2001 the same has increased to 96.6. Every year India imports 75 % of petroleum products from other countries by spending huge amount of foreign exchange, which is a great strain on our economic resources. Geologist's world is over fear that within the next 20 to 25 years, the treasure trove of natural oil from the earth continues. Now the time has come when we must endeavour to find alternate sources of fuel instead of just depending on natural oil. Bio-fuel is the answer it is the oil extracted from seeds of certain plants and trees. The full potential of bio-fuel as an alternate sources of fuel for fuelling machinery and transport vehicle has just been discovered and still a great deal of research is being made in this field. The film gives information on various types of trees and plant seeds from which bio-fuel can be produced.	Tamil	2007	8.57	Col	V. S. Nagarajan	Cinematography - Srinath Sastry & P. 6713	009029	Dagar	Documentary	Biography	Musicians	Dhrupad is the oldest surviving form of Hindustani classical music and the Dagers, who have been singing for twenty generations are responsible more than anyone else for keeping it alive. Times have changed but the Dagers have tenaciously not allowed the pristine Dhrupad to be diluted or distorted. This film on the Dagers is a slow meditative journey that fuses the depth and quiet of the traditional with the hurly-burly of the modern. The conflict between the soulfulness of the Gurukul as envisaged and practiced by the Dagers and the philistinism of city life is more left to the imagination than spelt out here. The film's mood ranges from the occasionally playful to the largely pure and profound. Immerging from the mountain chain of "Amarkantak", Narmada is worshiped as religiously as the "Ganga" Narmada receives the higher honour, as the devotees perform a "PariKrama" of this river, the only river of India to receive such devotion. All through the course of 1312 kilometres, Narmada holds many a devotional places (temples and ghats) on her banks unravel past history and give way to nostalgic memories. The director being a cameraman, could not resist him-self from capturing the picturesque offered by the river Narmada. 7230	009613	Moreh - The Eastern Gate	News Coverages / Reels	Political Science	Foreign Relations	After signing of agreement between the two countries of India and Myanmar, the border trade between the two countries is undergoing a transformation. However, there are unseen lacunae's hidden beneath the surface of the much hyped border trade. With the opening up of the market by the Indian Government, a boost has been given to the traders, with the hope of doing business across the border with their counterparts of their different countries, more particularly with Myanmar. Problem lies in the lack of facilities in infrastructure, compounded by lack of proper regulation of the trade items moving across the border. For instance, the currency structure of Myanmar is always in a fluid condition. This documentary would underscore the importance of the border trade and across the ground reality. During one such show, Phalke and his audience are distracted by a passing brass band advertising a new medium of entertainment- a Cinema show based on The Life of Jesus Christ. Intrigued Phalke visits the cinema hall and is enthralled by the Magic of Cinema. Coming home after watching a cinema show depicting the life of Jesus Christ, Phalke is sleepless, restless, seized by his vision of the films he could make, based on stories from Indian mythology. He sits down to write the script of his first film, Raja Harishchandra. When the script is ready, Phalke goes to potential financiers, Producers, distributor but their response is negative or at best, lukewarm. To prove his capability and demonstrate his skills, Phalke works on a short film, with a simple hand cranked camera, using time lapse photography, he records the growth of a pea plant frame by frame: a slow, laborious process over a period of several weeks resulting in D. G. Phalke's first productions: Growth of A Plant- a film barely over a minute long. Now he is ready to meet the financiers again Excited and impatient, D. G. Phalke waits for his guests-the potential financiers. When they arrive Phalke turns the projector on to an improvised screen-a sheet of cloth pinned to the wall: and in a flickering rectangle of light a small shoot of a pea-plant appears and as the fascinated guests watch in amazement, the plant continues to grow, putting out branches, leaves and tendrils - Dadasaheb had captured in those moments the miracle of life, the germination of a plant-through the magic of cinema. 7411	009852	Remembering Kurdi (yad Kurdi Ki)	Documentary			what is left of their homes, to perform rituals, have picnics and remember their dead. Gurucharan Kurdikar has vivid memories of his childhood in Kurdi but now lives in a city far away. Venisha fernandes was born after the submergence, but has grown up listening to stories of a lost paradise. Both return to search for where they belong in places imagined and places real. As Gurucharan and Venisha converse with a whole array of people, different aspects of the landscape and prior societal inter-relationships begin to emerge. The harsh memories of caste and feudal injustice are discussed with as much curiosity and fervour as personal stories of loss and longing. Yet while each community be they Hindu, Christian, Muslim or the Gaonkar tribe all tell of fractured histories. They share the fact of submergence just the same. As Venisha and Guru join the members of each community to traverse the arid landscape into the depths of the Salaulim reservoir, they witness how gestures can bring to life trees and houses and rivers that are no more. They witness how the very act of remembering can also be an act of becoming part of the land. 7413	009855	The Sax in the City (L. V.)	Documentary	Arts	Musicians	In Mumbai perspectives keep changing. Tiny dots of light approaching from unfathomable distances whizz past in coloured ares. More and yet more. Traffic moving to cityrhythms. The koli fisher folk of this string of islands birth their own music singing, dancing playing on festive occasions. Anand vaiti is part of this unique East Indian Band culture but wants to learn the saxophone and against all odds sets out, surreptiously following a man turns out to be the legendary Joe Peraira. It's a small community of saxophone players in Mumbai. One by one the film introduces and reintroduces them. Back in the 1960's a famous conductor from Germany looks for a proficient Musicians for his orchestra. He finds him in luke poswaity. Back then everyone knew 'Lukey'. Times changed there was less work and finally none. Lukey lives frugally in a tenement in Bandra (W), tutoring the stray pupil on the intricacies of the saxophone and western notations. He's just lost a leg to diabetes and smiles his way through the misery. Also in Bandra is the 26 year old Rhys a football enthusiast but the parents disciplined him into music. His mother is one of Mumbai's most talented pianists. Rhys accompanies her on the saxophone not without settling scores for the discipline. Raj sodah migrated into Mumbai from Ratlam bringing in his training and talent as a saxophonist. After years of the proverbial 'struggle' he gets a chance to play the soprano solo bit in the Bollywood hit 'Don'.	English	2016	61.34	Col	Praveen Kumar	Cinematography - Praveen Kumar, Cam. 7432	009891	Bansuriwala	Documentary	Biography	Musicians	Flute, the most ancient musical instrument, is now in the safe hands of Pandit Ronu Majumdar. For us, Indians, It's a matter of great pride that he has emerged as the successor to the legendary exponents of this instrument. Born in Varanasi, Pandit Ronu Majumdar exhibited great affinity towards flute in his childhood; which motivated his parents to take him to Mumbai for better training. His mother fancied him as a future All India Radio Flute player and his father initiated him to folk music. He had to endure grave hardships in this life's journey. But his positive approach, sincerity and determination brought him great laurels the world over. Despite his stature, Ronu Majumdar's philosophy towards life and simple way to live the life every moment proves that success doesn't always go in the head of a gentleman. As the loves everyone, he is beloved by everyone. His softness, pleasant personality and unparalleled Rewaz (practice) works like medicine to get relief from all tension created through materialistic ups and downs in life.	Hinglish (EST)	2016	52.25	Col	Biplab Majumder	Cinematography- Debasish Bhattacharjee, Biplab Majumder Sound- Avinahs Hidadugikar Editing- Prashant Naik Music- Script- Biplab Majumder Commentary Word- Commentary Spoken- Artist- Animator- Graphic-

7433	009893	Nicobar, A Long Way...	Documentary	Geography & Tourism	Region	Deep down the Bay of Bengal on an ancient trade route to the Far East, in the Nicobar archipelago lived the Nicobarese. The islands once upon a time were much frequented by passing traders for sojourns. The Nicobarese used to barter coconuts with them for fancies like an old hat or a coat, silk handkerchiefs, sometimes even empty alcohol bottles. In 1956, after being annexed to the Indian state, the Islands came to be protected under the Andaman and Nicobar Protection of aboriginal Tribes Regulation. Free Passage was restricted. No one, not even Indian Citizens could visit the islands and the Nicobarese got cut off as if living in a time capsule until the Tsunami, the film looks at the erstwhile self-contained universe now scattered and fragmented to eventually amalgamate in a much larger world order over which they have no control. Watching the Khalasis at work is an amazing experience. The heavy objects they handle could be a ship to be launched or a huge girder weighing tonnes. The dexterity of the Khalasis ensures that the work proceeds steadily and smoothly. The simple tools they use are designed and put together by themselves according to the situation. They use common sense, experience and ancient wisdom passed down over the generations. Their techniques are not found in text books on Engineering. 7436	009978	Lake of Fleeting Lights	Documentary	Biography	Writers / Poets / Lyricists	This documentary is an introspective journey in time with Joy Goswami, a leading Bengali Poet, through his writings, his memories and dreams. It explores the creative angst of a sexagenarian poet, settled in an urban milieu and in somewhat disconcerting time that provokes an existential dilemma in his self. Writing for more than four decades, poetry for Joy Goswami has always been a device for negotiating with his 'Self' and 'Time'. As the poet encounters individuals and societal difficulties, his struggle does not remain confined only within himself but points to similar struggles of art and artists all over the world. This impressionistic documentary, interspersed with recitations of his poems, anecdotes and remembrance, provides a rare glimpse of poets mind, touching everything from the mundane to the sublime. The film traces the poets very own way of negotiating the present dilemma, and his endeavour to craft a sublime tapestry of poetic images, like the fleeting lights on a placid lake that may turn out to be the reservoir of life to carry on in this dark world.	Bengali (EST)	2016	79.52	Col	Malay Dasgupta	Cinematography- Barun De Joardar, Asst.- Debashis Sarkar, Sound- Abdul Rajjak, Sonic Solutions, Editing- Sumit Ghosh, Asst.- Smriti Shekhar Mandal, Music- Prabuddha Banerjee, Biplav Singh, Bablu, Script- Malay Dasgupta, Commentary Word- Joy Goswami, Artist- Marc Chagall (Paintings), Subject Consultant- Saayan Chattopadhyay, Graphic- Utpal Basu, Surajit Biswas.

7443	009898	Plastic World	Animation Films	Environment	Pollution	In a vast and arid dystopian landscape of the future, covered in plastic waste, one man struggles to survive with his wife and dog. He scavenges a living in his world and they barely manage to survive. The only source of daylight comes pouring through a hole in the leaden sky which mountains of waste seem to lead up to and to the man this is a place of escape. One day he brings a fish home that he has scrounged from a plastic choked stream and after they feast on it, the dog dies, turning into plastic. His wife too displays the same symptoms. The man shows his wife a soap wrapper with the picture of greenery and butterflies that he has picked up from one of his many expeditions, and tells her that there is another world out there, clean and green. Together they set off up the mountains of plastic waste, even as the wife's health deteriorates further. On stepping outside the hole in the sky at last, the man realizes that he was living all those days in a giant plastic bottle and that he has simply stepped into a much larger bottle. As he looks up at a similar hole in the sky even in this world, he realizes there is no escape. 7448	009905	Nostalgia for the Future	Documentary			This film is a film essay on Indian modernity and its imagination of the body and the home. The film looks at four distinct homes built over the period of a century the Luxmi vilas palace in Baroda the gigantic home built by a progressive monarch in the late 19th century; the villa shodhan in Ahmedabad. A private residence designed by Le Corbusire, which represents an idea of domesticity within Nehruvian modernity; the Sabarmati Ashram which epitomizes the Gandhian aspirations of the nation state and public housing in post-independence Delhi designed by the government of India to house refugees from Pakistan and the bureaucrats of the newly independent nation. The film explores these spaces and imagines the bodies that were meant to inhabit them through the evocation of the cinematic and aural collective memory of a nation. It uses a mix of formats 16mm film, digital video in both colour and black and white, along with archival footage from documentaries and mainstream cinema. It is a collaboration between film maker Avijit Mukul Kishore and Architect Rohan Shivkumar and it emerges from the intersection of their respective disciplines, architecture and documentary film, both of which have always been embroiled in a discourse of utilitarianism and certainty. The film opens these disciplines out to discussion and looks at the way they are involved in imagining and constructing a nation and its citizen.	Hindi (Partly English)	2017	54.28	Col	Avijit Mukul Kishore and Rohan Shivkumar	Cinematography- Avijit Mukul Kishore,  Sound- Gissy Michael, Ashish Pandya,  Editing- Avijit Mukul Kishore,  Music- Glenn Gould String Quartet Op. 1,  Script- Rohan Shivkumar.

7453	009917	Born Behind Bars	Documentary	Children	Welfare	Prisons are for punishment. And as part of it, incarcerated mothers lose the right to bring up their children in the outside world. In India, children can accompany their mothers in prison till they are 6. Sometimes this is extended to 8. They stay in cramped cells, sharing the bed with their mothers and often times have no extra ration or provisions supplied to them. The ramification of these formative years in prison is rarely studied. It is commonly believed that the trauma of separation from the mother during these early years is far greater than the impact of the prison world they begin to call their home. In most cases, the father is not considered fit to take care of the young one. During this time, they share the same rules as the rest of the inmates. It is not uncommon for a mother and child to be housed with an offender who is in for a violent crime. International studies have shown that prisoner's neglected children are at risk for delinquency and are likely to get caught in a cycle of poverty and crime that will feed our prisons for generations. Yet these children are nobody's priority. Jail authorities consider them a drain on their already meagre budgets. There is immense diversity of action in jail manuals on what constitutes as care for the children. Although the Supreme Court (RD Upadhyay Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh) issued minimum standards for housing mother and child in prison in 2006, giving prisons three situation. My film is set in the Baroda Central women's prison and I wish to explore the impact of this forced incarceration on the minds of three children who are growing up behind high prison walls for no fault of their own.	Telugu (EST)	2017	52.31	Col	Malati Rao	Cinematography- Anisha Lanewala, Shefali Jamwal Sound- Anisha Lanewala, Shefali Jamwal Editing- Pradip Patil, Malati Rao Music- Tajdar Junaid Script- Commentary Word- Commentary Spoken- Artist- Animator- Graphic-

7460	009949	Era of Legendary Studios (Bhabya Studio ka Mahayug)	Documentary	Arts	Cinema	Over hundred years of Indian Cinema, it has been the emergence of a wide range of filmmakers and a broad spectrum of films, but the journey of Indian cinema starts long back in colonial India with a handful of visionaries whose endeavours gave birth to one of the biggest film industries of the world. From individual passion, cinema in India turned into family entrepreneurship but what make Indian cinema reach its zenith was the legendary studio system of the bygone era which transformed an emerging art form into a full blow industry. This particular documentary is the chronicle of the studio system and studio culture in the Indian cinema that gave it the shape of industry, one of the most nourishing ones in the world and the spirit to keep this medium of entertainment alive not just for one century but for ages to come. An archive of significant studios in India has been encompassed through the narrative of this documentary films - "Era of Legendary Studios".
