Rediscovering Our Story New Insights Into the Roots of Paul Smith's College with Dr. Curt Stager.

Freer Auditorium

Traditional accounts of Adirondack history have often centered on Euro-American loggers, guides, and entrepreneurs of the past two centuries, but our full history is much richer than that. New research shows that it includes a deep Indigenous presence and Black pioneers of the 19th century who helped to shape the story of the Adirondacks as well as that of the state and the nation. These insights greatly enrich the story of Paul Smith's College and help us re-imagine what it really means to be an Adirondacker.
